

Update from Mr Davda

I am delighted to be writing my first update as the new Headteacher of Corvedale Primary School and feel extremely privileged to have been entrusted with overseeing the education of your children. I would like to build even stronger connections between home and school and look forward to working alongside you to enable our pupils to fulfil their potential.

Corvedale is a wonderful place and I have inherited a fantastic school from Mr Brough. The staff are extremely talented and committed to achieving the highest standards of care and education for your children. This will be my second Headship, but I have previously held a multitude of leadership roles within education, including the improvement of teaching and learning across eight schools. Hopefully this reassures you that together we will be successful as we strive to deliver the best possible outcomes and continue to develop a vibrant and engaging curriculum to ensure our school is a place where pupils enjoy learning.

Aside from a minor panic the school may be flooded on the first day back, this week has been a dream start! The children have returned beautifully and already seem settled and excited for the year ahead. To those of you I have managed to meet so far, thank you for the warm welcome you have extended me – and to those I have not yet managed to introduce myself to, I look forward to speaking to you in the not-too-distant future.

My teaching commitment does not interfere with the beginning or the end of the school day – I like to keep those times available – so please feel free to drop in if ever you feel you need to see me or would just like to say hello. With so much to look forward to this year, I really hope you are all as excited as I am!
